

Catherine Fletcher
Programme Development

After PhD and postdoctoral studies at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, Cathy worked as a lecturer in medical parasitology at the National Yang Ming University, Taipei. Subsequently she became scientific editor for the Institute of Biomedical Sciences, Academia Sinica (Taiwan). On returning to the UK she joined the Wellcome Trust's Infection and Immunity Section, and worked within the Trust for 11 years handling a wide variety of UK and international grants. In 2006 she moved to Kenya to work as Head of Training for the KEMRI (Kenya Medical Research Institute)-Wellcome Trust Research Programme based in Kilifi, in line with her long-term interest in capacity strengthening for health and development. She joined LIDC in July 2008.
