

Strategies for Development Education Policies - lessons from Spain

This seminar will reflect on a policy process to define the development education strategy for the Valencia Region of Spain. During eight months a participative process was conducted with the aim to include different relevant actors in the educational formal sector: teachers, NGOs, local and regional policy makers, etc. In this seminar, we will reflect on the process and the outcome of this experience, paying special attention to the influence of the global agenda (the Sustainable Development Goals) and of the local context.

Venue

LIDC, Ground Floor Meeting Room,
36 Gordon Square
London, WC1H 0PD

Date & Time

21 February 2017
5.00pm–6.30pm

For further details and to book a place contact:
Doug Bourn

email: d.bourn@ucl.ac.uk

RSVP by 14 February 2017

ucl.ac.uk/ioe

Speaker

Alejandra Boni, Associate Professor at the Universitat Politècnica de Valencia., Spain

Alejandra Boni is Associate Professor at the Universitat Politècnica de València, researcher at INGENIO (CSIC-UPV) and Honorary Professor of the University of the Free State in South Africa.

Co-authored more than thirty papers in the field of development studies and development education. Co-author of the book Universities and Global Human Development: theoretical and empirical insights for social change, (Routledge, 2016)